DENVER/DALLAS REGION

APRIL 28, 2020

Census Awareness Weekend: May 1-3

The 2020 Census is excited to share that the regions will lead a second push to increase self-response from May 1-3. The goal is to increase self-response rates; encourage response by Internet, mail, and phone; use media most appropriate to reach their population; and encourage the use of the #2020Census hashtag on all social media posts May 1-3.

2020 Census Reminder Postcards Arriving

The Census Bureau is beginning to send reminder notice postcards to an estimated 69 million households that have not yet responded. As of April 27, about 53.4 percent of households across the country have responded. Read more here.

New Census Surveys Provide Real-Time Information on Households and Businesses during COVID-19

The goal is to measure various sectors impacted by COVID-19: employment status, consumer spending, food security, housing, education disruptions and dimensions of physical and mental wellness. Read more here.

Census COVID-19 Interactive Data Hub

The data hub enables communities to see their community's data in regards to the pandemic. Read more here and also visit: <https://covid19.census.gov/>

Verifying 2020 Census Calls

After you respond to the 2020 Census, you may receive phone calls from the U.S. Census Bureau. The purpose of this effort is to ensure that no person is left out of the census or counted in more than one place. If you receive a call and you are concerned about the legitimacy of the call, please call 1-844-809-7717 (English) and a Census Bureau representative will be able to assist you. Please visit Avoiding Fraud and Scams to learn more.
